What does OISC mean?

The Office of the Immigration Services Commissioner (OISC) is the United Kingdom regulator of the immigration advice industry. Unless an immigration adviser is regulated by another approved regulator (for example a solicitor, a barrister or a legal executive) they must be regulated by the OISC.

The amount of advice and support an organisation can provide depends on what level they are certified to. Below is a simple explanation of each level:

- Level 1 – Initial advice
- Level 2 – Casework (initial applications to the Home Office)
- Level 3 – Advocacy and representation (including appeals)
